MANY STATES HOLD ELECTIONS.

Kentucky is One of Six States To Elect a Governor.

FUSION IN NEBRASKA.

Some Exciting Municipal Contests Are Attracting Great Interest.

New York, Oct. 31.—There will be elections held in twelve States Tuesday. In Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maryland, Mississippi and Kentucky a Governor and other State officers are to be chosen; in New Jersey, a Governor only; in New York, two Associate Justices of the Court of Appeals; in Pennsylvania, a State Treasurer, and in Nebraska, a Railroad Commissioner and two Regents of the State University. In Ohio, Utah and California, municipal officers are to be selected, while in New York county a number of Judges and Sheriff are to be voted for.

The prohibitionists have a State ticket in all the States except Maryland and Mississippi, and city tickets in Cleveland and Cincinnati, but not in San Francisco or Salt Lake.

The Socialists also have tickets in all the States except Mississippi and Maryland, and city tickets in Cincinnati, Cleveland and Salt Lake, but not in San Francisco.

The Socialist-Labor party has tickets in Kentucky, Massachusetts and New Jersey, while Union-Labor made nominations for city officers in San Francisco.

SON SHOOT HIS FATHER

Father Was Advancing Upon His Son With a Raised Ax When the Latter Fired.

Edward White shot and killed his father, Mr. John White, at his home near Casky at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The father was advancing upon the son with a drawn axe, when the shot was fired.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN LIES GROW MORE NUMEROUS AS ELECTION APPROACHES.

Unable to squarely meet the charge that Augustus E. Willson is the regularly employed attorney for the Tobacco Trust and its infant industries in the state of Kentucky, which the public records prove him to be the Republicans are seeking, by innuendo, to cast some cloud upon the Democratic party and its splendid officials, as if to by that means, draw attention away from the trust record of the head of their ticket now before the people of the state. To do this, they are, through W. O. Bradley, asking the question whether or not the Democratic party has ever received the sum of fifteen thousand dollars from the American Tobacco Company or any other tobacco company which is now a part or parcel of the iniquitous and odious combination of wealth which is seeking to grind under its heel the farmers and tobacco raisers of Kentucky. Mr. Bradley, mind you, does not make such a charge, for he well knows it to be without foundation and that, like the charge of his candidate, A. E. Wilson, as to W. J. Bryan being paid five hundred dollars a day to come to the state and make speeches urging the election of Judge Hager and the Democrats associated with him, it cannot be proven or even be given reliable backing, but he only asked a question. Every Democrat who has had anything to do with campaigns of the last dozen years, can stand up squarely before the former Republican governor, this leading counsel for W. S. Taylor, for the rectified liquor interests and for corporations generally, and deny the truth of his statement or implication in whole or in part, and demand that he produce his proof before the people before whom he made it, or that he retract his charge, or rather implied charge.

Doubtless this half charge was put

ON COUNTY'S HANDS

Are The Two Incurable Grass Widows.

Jessie Rogers and Lilly Humphreys, the two youthful female toughs who were in police court recently for operating a disorderly house in a cabin near Cate's mill, inside the city, have left the city and have located in "San Domingo," the negro suburb. The girls were under 18 years of age, but both have been married. The owner of the cabin where they lived was required to move them, which he lost no time in doing. It is now up to the county to look after them.

POLICE CHIEF'S

Report for October will Show Large Business.

Chief of Police Roper's report to the council next Friday night for the month of September will show that the police have been quite busy during the month.

Up to yesterday morning at 8:00 o'clock 113 arrests had been made for various offenses. The fines assessed aggregated $715.

With two days more to work upon, it is probable that the number of arrests will be further increased.

SLIGHT INCREASE

In Supplemental Registration Over Last Year.

Up to 3:00 o'clock yesterday evening 109 votes had applied for registration at the County Clerk's office. Last year up to 9 o'clock 98 had registered.

Registration for the first day of the three provided by law for giving absentees and persons who were ill or had serious illness in their homes on the regular day a chance to get into line with their party gave the county clerk about all he could do. Since then he has had but little to

A BIG BLAZE AT TRENTON

Twenty Head of Horses and One Fifty Tons of Hay Destroyed.

ITS ORIGIN UNKNOWN

The Insurance Will Not Cover Anything Like the Loss Sustained.

About $6,000 worth of property went up in smoke Wednesday night on the farm of Mr. S. D. Chesnut, 2 miles from Trenton.

The firm of Chesnut & Parham sustained the greater loss. The firm had twenty horses in Mr. Chesnut's stable as well as 150 tons of hay and a large lot of harness, which was discovered to be on fire about nine o'clock. Horses, hay and harness, together with the stable, which was a new and very large one, were destroyed.

When the fire was discovered it had gotten under such headway that it was impossible for the neighbors and people of Trenton to save anything when they reached the premises.

Up to yesterday morning no theory had been advanced as to how the fire originated. The gentlemen who sustained the heavy loss are among the most popular of that section and have, we learn, no reason to suspect anyone of having applied the torch.

The loss in the aggregate will approximate $6,000. It is reported that the firm had about $1,500 or $2,000 on their property, though that has not been confirmed. Mr. Chesnut, the owner of the building, may also have had some insurance.

Value of Insurance.

CUNDIFF AND PEDIGO

Here This Week Looking After Business in Commissioner's Court.

Deputy Marshal T. J. Cundiff dropped in this week with a bunch of offenders to be tried for retailing liquor without license.

On the way down he had Dock Long, Tom Hargrell and Bud Holland, all negroes, tried at Russellville, but they were not held.

Tobe Thurston, of Elkton, Ed Washington, of Oak Grove, and Ben Johns, a white man, of Fruit Hill, were brought here before Commissioner Young, all of whom were held over and Marshal Cundiff left with them for Owensboro Tuesday.

Marshal Cundiff was accompanied by his assistant, T. B. Pedigo.

Died at 52.

Miss Eliza McKee died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Sophronia Barlow, on East Third St., last Monday night. The deceased came here with her sister about three years ago. She had been an invalid for some time. She was a member of the Christian Church and was 52 years of age. Funeral services were conducted by the pastor, Dr. H. D. CORRECT THE EVILS BUT STAND BY THE ASSOCIATION

Congressman Gaines Issues an Address to the Dark Tobacco District Planters:

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 28.
To the Members of the Planters' Protective Association:

Realizing that you would rejoice to hear, even indirectly, from your beloved and patriotic general manager and chairman, Felix G. Ewing, I take this means of saying to you, that I have had the great pleasure of reading a nine-page letter written by Mr. Ewing, with pen, in a strong, bold and characteristic style, which clearly indicates to me that his nerves are again in natural repose and his strength has been rapidly returning. In fact, he says that he has regained twenty-five pounds, but "I am awfully weak and tickety, pining for home, yearning to pull my part of the association load," although "not capable of doing the hard work of the past, and may not be for many months," but "I will give my thought and counsel to it"—the association.

Wise and thoughtful as he always was, and will again be, his "thought and counsel" will be most welcome, whether he is or is not able again to "draw water and hew wood" for the Association. But his burdens will be less on his return. By your patriotic and heroic devotion to home, justice and right, through your association, the "load" he helped you to bear as long as he was able to stand up, has been lessened, the enemy has been driven back, inch by inch, day by day—they stand whipped, they have stacked arms and surrendered to your just and considerate demands, and the leaders backed by millions are encompassed by the strong arm of the law, and are being prosecuted in dead earnest, by the Federal government. No, your "load" is not what it used to be. You are practically out of debt, as a result of an inevitable and timely stand you, three years ago, took and have gallantly maintained through your association—your last resort.

When Mr. Ewing was stricken down, you were in the midst of the thickest of the fight. Other able and patriotic members took his place and continued the battle; an unprecedented success is yours—a victory, the result of your united and daily effort. Your struggle, as well as your victory, by the advice of a physician, have been withheld from Mr. Ewing, and he now, able again, thank God, to read and write, turns his face toward home and friends and asks "What of the hour?" pining to be at the same time "side by side" with you to continue your own fight.

"Don't give up the ship" If Mr. Ewing must die, by such a stand you can give him the chance to say "Victory is ours, I die happy."

From every standpoint—for ourselves and in honor to him—it behooves you to stand your ground. Leave no stone unturned—always acting within the limits of the law—to maintain your association. With a watchful eye, keep it and yourself (and compel all others to do so) within the pathway trod by the good, home-loving, law-abiding citizens. You have already attracted the attracted the attention and admiration of almost the entire agricultural classes of the United States. Even foreigners are writing here to know how on earth farmers ever organized and kept organized, and overcome such a powerful and unscrupulous concern as the tobacco trust and its

Doing Business Again.

"When my friends thought I was about to take leave of this world, on account of indigestion, nervousness and general debility," writes A. A. Chisholm, Treadwell, N. Y., "and when it looked as if there was no hope left, I was persuaded to try Electric Bitters, and I rejoice to say that they are curing me. I am now doing business again as of old, and am still gaining daily." Best tonic medicine on earth. Guaranteed by R. C. Hardwick, druggist. 50c.

foreign allies, who have the farmers in foreign lands by the throat, just as you were less than four years ago.

Your Association is a monumental success, creditable to its founder, its members and allies. It has been the cause, the great measure, of exposing to public gaze, evil doers, lawless wealth and set the officers of the law after them, and they are after them still. On yesterday the Federal Government filed suit in Richmond, Va., attaching to "confiscate", 175 cases of cigars and cigarettes, valued at $7,727.75 being exported to England by the American Tobacco Trust, consigned to its foreign branch, (British American Tobacco Co.) the Government's complaint being that these Trusts were violating the Sherman anti-trust law. Under this law last June the government filed another bill—an injunction proceedings—against this Trust, setting out its oppressive and lawless conduct toward you and others. The government is, I honestly believe, in good faith, intelligently pressing these suits. The latter suit, I assure you, two years ago, would be filed.

Soon Congress will meet and your friends there will renew their fight to repeal the six cents tax on tobacco. An "extraordinary" lobby fund has been appropriated to defeat this legislation, while great Trust Lawyers, supported by millions, are opposing these law suits—filed to aid you and others.

Pending dissolution of these Trusts by the courts and the repeal of this tax our Association must be maintained, if no longer. Look back a few years and see your condition—in debt, homes mortgaged, tobacco sold for a pittance or sold at a price fixed by the Trust. A few patriotic men, your neighbors and friends, without money and without experience, but with brains and determination, with big hearts and strong arms, helped you to set up this organization. It was then an experiment, and rich men refused to back it. You then worked out your own salvation. It is no longer an experiment, and you are out of debt with money in the bank. Four years ago your tobacco was sold at from three to eight dollars, that now sells from six to twenty dollars. Four years ago you hunted for buyers and begged them to buy at their price. Now, the buyers hunt you and beg you to sell at your price. You did not expect this yourself. See what a united and patriotic effort can do.

Don't strike down your association, because you can't have your own way, or because there are individual instances of wrong-doing, by members or outsiders. Correct these evils, but do not undermine the Association—leave yourself, your wives and children unprotected from the Trust, that has neither heart to feel, nor conscience to quicken and which mercilessly, for years, oppressed you, until it was challenged and checked by your Association. Uphold your organization and at the same time in a many way, fight down wrong doing. Separate the two.

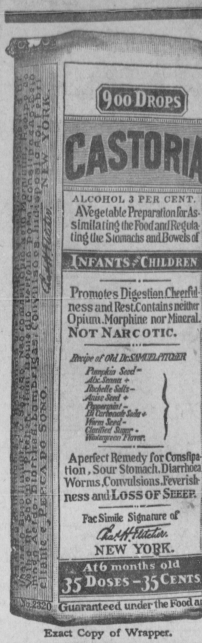

You have much as we all have, for which to be thankful to the God who gave. Let us all be thankful that He has both given and spared to each of us, Felix Grundy Ewing.

Yours truly

The Unwilling Hero

In Startling Adventure and Fascinating Mystery

A young man arrives in San Francisco at dusk. He knows but one person in all that great city—a cousin, a man of his own age. Within the hour the cousin is murdered and the stranger is plunged into the midst of an intricate conspiracy. Fate takes him by the hand. Luck points the way. Circumstances, blind, but relentless, rob him of his rightful name and cheat him out of his identity. They make him the champion of a cause he never heard of, the leader of conspirators he never saw and the lover of a girl he dreads to win. Cunningly attacked by unknown assailants and as cunningly guarded by unknown defenders, he is the storm center of a dramatic and relentless struggle.

Both the reader and the hero are "blindedfolded." Both are quite as innocent of the past as they are ignorant of the future. The present, full of mystery and adventure, is all they can handle. But very gladly and together they fight against an enemy unseen, with friends unknown, and for stakes undreamed of.

Those qualities, whatever they are, that in mystery most fascinate us; that in adventure most charm us; are the qualities that dominate the pages of Victory At Bowling Green.

"Hopkinsville High School is coming to Bowling Green with the expectation of taking the Odgen scalp into camp, but they will be a sorry disappointed bunch when they return home," said one of the morning papers of the Park City. To tell the truth it did look a little that way when the team first lined up, but the High School boys were just provoked enough at their poor work at Paducah to play hard. That is exactly what they did. They went into the game with a determination to carry home the victory and show that they do know how to play foot ball.

Capt. Breathitt won the toss and received the kick-off. This was just as it should be. Cravens was sent through for 10 yds on the first buck. Such work put the High School on their metal and they showed the team work. Tichenor, Earle, Cravens and Meacham alternated in carrying the ball and all the gains were consistent. The backs did not have to buck the line alone but hit it in a bunch and the college boys were slowly forced backward. The entire half was played in Odgen territory. End runs did not net much gain. Line plunges worked well. The High School put up a swell offensive game. Odgen lacked team work. There was no united effort on their part, but there was some good individual playing. High School tried several forward passes and while they were passed well and received, the gain was not sufficient for this play. Odgen tried to run the ends but Capt. Breathitt and Dabney were too much for them. Time and again these little fellows would dump plays which looked too large for big Earle. At no time could the college lads skirt the High School ends. Earle back of the line played like a veteran. Tichenor as defensive tackle surprised many. Rubb at center passed the ball without a fault. The half ended 0-0.

Second half. High School again received the ball. Their gains were as consistent as before. They were now more called "Lunatics."

Odgen had nothing to cheer for. By Meacham's superb kicking High School rushed the ball down the field and secured a fumble. Capt. Breathitt kicked a beautiful field goal. Then matters brightened up considerably the boys kicked at every opportunity. They finally worked the ball to their opponents 30 yds. line when Meacham, the star High School back, made a beautiful run through a broken field for a touch down. There was just one minute to play and in this time High School came very near making a second touch down. Score 9-0.

There are a number of comments that might be made about the High School team. It is quiet; evident that they receive little support from town. Bowling Green cleared expenses. At Madisonville the High School team cleared $70.00 on their game. When High School brings a team here it is almost a forgone conclusion that they will come out in the hole. They should not be. Our boys compare favorably with those of any school at which they have been. In fact they seem to have something in their favor. Yet we are unable to stir up enough enthusiasm to bring teams of our class and have big odds to play against. Nevertheless, wherever they have been they have always been commended for their pluck and knowledge of the game. The boys are going to have some foreign teams here shortly and it seems that the expenses ought to be forthcoming from some source. The boys are willing to work. All they wish is support.

CARING FOR PLANTS

THINGS THE AMATEUR GARDENER SHOULD KNOW.

Keeping Plants in Health and Beauty More a Matter of Watchfulness Than Expense—Pests to Contend with.

The yellow day lily is a hardy plant, that, while found in old gardens, is comparatively rare in new ones. It deserves general cultivation. The flowers are borne very freely and flowering is continued for a very long period. The flowers are of a clear canary yellow, its foliage is very luxuriant and on this account alone is well worth growing. It should be disturbed as little as possible. Propagation is affected by division of the roots. There is no difficulty attending the cultivation of this most delightful plant. Give it a rich soil and keep it free from weeds. To this plant age has brought only added value and beauty. One of the most delightful of flowering plants is the jasmine revolutum. It bears small clusters of starry flowers of a rich yellow and these are full of a very rich, heavy fragrance of a peculiar kind. Its foliage is a dark green, and furnishes a pleasing background for the flowers. To grow it will give a lanky soil in which there is not enough to make it light, it will make it rich. Water freely while growing and blooming. It also likes plenty of sunshine. It can be trained about the window, or to the rafters of a greenhouse and in most effective. It grows with jasmine grandiflorum, which is much like it in all respects save that of color, the latter being pure white and thus a fine effect is produced—an effect worth striving for.

There is no plant more subject to the green fly than the cineraria. If there is one about the place it is sure to find one of these plants, and in a short time they will be completely covered with the pests. If the plant is not attended to at once it will begin to show yellow leaves and in a short time the plant will be ruined. Nothing is so effective in ridding the plants of the pests as is fumigation with tobacco leaves. It is sometimes a bother to fumigate plants, but still if you love the flowers you will be willing to put yourself to some trouble for them.

Cooking Lamb. Throw it into boiling water for five minutes and drain.

Put in a stewpan a piece of butter the size of a walnut and place on the fire. When melted mix in it one tablespoonful of flour, after which pour in, little by little, a pint and a half of boiling water, stirring constantly with a wooden spoon.

Put the meat in the pan and four small onions, a bay leaf, two cloves, three sprigs of parsley, two of thyme, salt and pepper.

About 15 minutes before it is done add two or three mushrooms cut in slices. Take from the fire when cooked. Place the meat on a dish with the mushrooms and let it stand for five or ten minutes before serving. If preferred, without either. Strain the sauce over the meat, and serve.

Cocoonat Cakes.

Beat three tablespoonfuls of butter and three tablespoonfuls of sugar to a cream, then add two well-beaten eggs very gradually, add three tablespoonfuls of chopped cocoanut and mix in three tablespoonfuls of four beaten thoroughly.

Butter and four small graham pan and nearly fill with the mixture. Bake for 15 minutes in a slow oven, turn out and cool.

Roll in a clean saucpan two tablespoonfuls of jam or jelly, two tablespoonfuls of water and two tablespoonfuls of brown sugar for 15 minutes; remove from the fire brush the cakes over with this and sprinkle chopped cocoanut all over them.

Gelatine of Veal.

Bone the meat in a piece of the shoulder of veal and remove all gristle. Mix the marrow of a pound of sausage meat with a scant half pound of bread crumbs, season highly with salt and pepper, and bind together with one beaten egg. Put this in the center of the veal, tie it firmly together, put it into a deep saucpan with a bay leaf, a few peppercorns and a pinch of thyme, cover with water, and let simmer for two hours. When thoroughly cooked take the veal out of the broth, and when cold remove the string.

Baked Beets.

Many old-fashioned cooks like the English way of baking beets instead of boiling. They claim they preserve their natural sweetness better when baked. Wash well, but do not break the skin. Put into a baking tin with a little hot water thrown over them. When tender, peel, slice and serve with lemon juice, vinegar, pepper and salt, or butter, pepper and salt. Baked beets are fine chilled, sliced with celery, and covered with mayonnaise.

Candied Pineapple.

Peel and slice a pineapple, cutting out the eyes. Weigh the fruit, and allow a pound and a half of sugar for each pound of fruit. Put fruit and sugar into the preserving kettle and add a very little water. Boil until the pineapple is tender, take from the fire and spread on a platter to cool, while you boil the sirup until very thick. Return the pineapple to the sirup, stir for a few minutes, then spread the fruit on platters until dry and candied.

The Young Physician.

WHAT HIS EXPERIENCE PROVIDED.

In the early sixties it was usually the duty of a practicing physician to ride many miles every day on his regular rounds of visits upon his patients. In those days a young man who had received a splendid medical training in one of the best medical colleges of that day was accustomed to ride ten, twenty, thirty miles or more visiting the sick and afflicted. His success was soon phenomenal. Doctors and families called him for consultation to towns at considerable distances by rail. His specialty was the cure of those common and distressing diseases of women. He had early discovered that by combining the extracts of the following medicinal plants, in just the right proportion, without the use of alcohol his "Prescription" almost invariably cured such cases. Later, in order to place this remedy before the public in a shape easily to be procured, he established a laboratory at Buffalo, N. Y., where regularly qualified chemists were put in charge to accurately prepare his "Prescription" and to ship it in small bottles to all parts of the world. This remedy, which he named Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, is a "patent medicine" but a tonic and nerve for women, and a regular physician's prescription, and contains the following ingredients: Lady's Slipper root, Black Cashoot root, Unicorn root, Blue Cohosh root, Golden Seal root, and chemically prepared. Dr. Pierce does not claim for his "Prescription" any of the results which follow the use of this remarkable remedy, that it can be truly said of it, "It is a prescription that it always helps and almost always cures. Ninety-eight per cent. of the women who give this medicine a fair and faithful trial are cured and remain cured. It is a powerful invigorating tonic, imparting health and strength in particular to the womb and its appendages. The local, womanly health is so intimately related to the general health that when diseases of the delicate womanly organs are cured the whole body gains in health and strength. For weak and sickly women who are "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated, especially for women who work in store, office or schoolroom, who sit at the typewriter or sewing machine, or bear heavy household burdens, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will prove a precious benefit because of its health-restoring and strengthening power.

The Proof. "I want to tell you of the great improvement in my health, since taking your 'Favorite Prescription,' says Mrs. H. S. Jones, of Forest, N. C. 'When I began its use I was a physical wreck and had despaired of ever having good health again. Could not sit up at night. I noted a great improvement from the first bottle was all used. Was suffering with almost every ailment that a woman is subject to: had inflammation of the ovaries, backache and neuralgia, and all the symptoms of female disease. After taking six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' I feel like a new person. Can rise and walk and take all kinds of exercise and not feel tired. Only one or two of these things any longer bother me. My irregular, coated, flatulent bowels are now regular, and set up and get rid of their evils at once. In healthy, vigorous action, a foul stomach, torpid liver and sluggish bowels, lead to all the troubles that produce great misery and debility. First put up by Dr. J. C. Pierce, over 40 years ago. Much imitated but never equalled."

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure, send for circulars free.

Ladies' hats are so much larger this year than usual they are proving to be a positive nuisance in gatherings where everybody cannot have a front seat. Diamonds Recovered.

Eleven diamonds valued at $4500, stolen from Mrs. H. H. Holman's room in the Louisville hotel, were recovered by detectives who went to a woman who had been in the room and told her the diamonds must be found or criminal prosecution would follow. Later they were found in a conspicuous place in Mrs. Holman's room.

It has come to be a part of every campaign conducted by Republicans in Kentucky—that certain of their speakers devote themselves to slander of the party in power, that figures be juggled in an effort to show up state officials as rascals and grafters. Until within the last two weeks the making of such charges and the peddling of such slanders was delegated to a small bore politician whom the Republicans have put forward as their nominee for secretary of state. Evidently they found out that his charges, though outrageous in the extreme, were attracting too little attention, so Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bradley, those twin corporation lawyers, were substituted for the unattractive Bruner. Wilson led off with his charge against Bryan, which, so quickly called by Democrats of prominence, proved a boomerang to him and detrimental to his interests. Even Republicans resented this monstrous slander against the man who stands at the head of the Democratic party in the nation. Then came the charge from public record that Wilson is a Tobacco Trust lawyer. Unable to answer it, after dodging about for a week or more, he contented himself by calling the governor of his state "Crispy," by calling his distinguished opponent "Incompetent," and by calling Ollie James, the big congressman for the First district, a "Tumble-bug." This is his explanation of his trust connections. After dealing in pyrotechnics he dropped out of sight for a day or two and Bradley looms up with his implied charge about Democrats receiving campaign contributions from the tobacco companies. Produce your proof Mr. Bradley, or like Wilson, drop out and let some other Republican leader come to the front with a new charge which has better foundation. Speak from the records as have the Democratic leaders and orators in their criticism of your military record while governor, or your record as a liquor attorney and as chief counsel for fugitive Taylor, and as they have in proving Mr. Wilson to be the attorney in Kentucky for the Tobacco Trust.

CONFERENCE CLOSES

Dr. Massee Preached Last Serman Tuesday Night.

Dr. Jasper C. Massee preached the last sermon of the Bible Conference at the Baptist Church Tuesday night on the "Holy Spirit," and the baptism with fire. The auditorium was filled and some were seated in the Sunday School room. Pastor Jenkins commented favorably upon the attendance during the Conference and Dr. Massee, before beginning his sermon, expressed his delight at having been present to take part in and enjoy the Conference.

His last sermon, like all he has preached, was able, profound and delivered with all the graces of an orator.

No prayer meeting service was held at the Baptist church last night.

Attended Initial Number of Tabernacle Course.

Very Sick at Their Home in Guthrie.

A large and appreciative audience greeted the Elms B. Smith Co. at the tabernacle Tuesday night. This was the first of the series of attractions of the tabernacle course for this season.

The entertainment throughout was of a high order and the four persons composing it are all artists in their lines. Every number was applauded to an encore. As a child impersonator Miss Elma Smith stands without a peer. Her petite figure and voice are specially suited for readings she has selected for this season's work. Time and time again she was called back and the little woman seemed to make a more decided hit at each response.

Mr. Cecil Burleigh, the violinist, is one of the best that has ever appeared in this city. He is master of his instrument, and for a man of his years he is a wonder. When he first touched the strings of his instrument it was evident that a master was on the platform. When he muted his instrument and began "My Old Kentucky Home," everything was as still as death. Our people have heard "Dixie" on the violin many times, but never like Burleigh gave it.

Of Miss Agnes Ambrose, the pianist, too much cannot be said. Her first rendition with the left hand was wonderful. She can produce as much music with one hand as many professionals can with both. She accompanied Burleigh's violin solos one could hardly tell which instrument he had rather follow.

The next attraction will be Friday, Nov. 15th—Frederick Warde, the tragedian and reader.

ALLEN ALLENSWORTH

Wants to Call a Convention to Solve the Race Problem.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 30.—Rev. Allen Allensworth, a Baptist minister, of Bowling Green, Ky., has addressed a communication to the colored people of the United States asking for expressions regarding the holding of a national convention, looking to the solution of the race problem in the Southern States, and the desirability in particular of establishing a purely negro commonwealth in some part of the United States.

Another Wildcat Story.

With the desperation and ferocity of an enraged lion, fighting with all of its power, whipping two large dogs, a wildcat could not be captured until two bullets were sent crashing into its body Saturday night out near Willow, a station three miles southwest of town on the L. & N. railroad, says the Allen County Times.

Arthur Sexton, Gilbert Wilson and four other young men were out hunting possums and had waded around in the timber for some time without their efforts being rewarded when, without any warning, a large wildcat sprang upon the dogs and a fast and furious battle raged for a few minutes, but the strength and fighting proclivities of the maddened animal was too much for the dogs, they whipped into instant submission very quickly. At this juncture the young men becoming alarmed, fearing the animal would turn upon them, fired two bullets into its body, killing it instantly. The young men brought the wildcat to town and it is now on exhibition at R. E. Wilson's grocery store, East Main St.

A Good Law.

Thanks to the good work of the last General Assembly, there is a law upon the statute books which provides penalties for hiring a horse from a livery stable and making false representations as to how far the animal is to be ridden or driven, says the Louisville Times. The law was enacted primarily to protect livery stable keepers from loss, but it operates to protect dumb animals from the brutality of persons who have no mercy upon them. The law has been enforced recently in several counties, and the men convicted have, in most cases, been worthless negroes. The lot of the "livery horse" is an extremely hard one under the most favorable conditions. When the animal is rented to irresponsible ruffins who represent that they are to drive it five miles and drive it fifteen regardless of what service it may have done on the same day, its sufferings are intense, and the ends of justice are not more than met when the offender is made to pay the extreme penalty. Every livery stable keeper should be conversant with the law and should make every effort to enforce it.

MANY SPEAKERS

Will Discuss Questions At Coming State Development Convention.

Plans for the 6th Annual Kentucky State Development convention to be held in Louisville on Nov. 19th, 20th and 21st are rapidly maturing and acceptances are being received from eminent speakers who have been invited to take part in the program.

Every line of industry will be given due attention on the program, speakers of wide renown discussing topics which are now occupying the minds of the citizens of Kentucky.

A local committee on Arrangements, composed of a dozen leading business men of Louisville, has the work in charge and it is evident at this time that the 6th Annual State Development Convention will be the greatest meeting of all. Low railroad rates have been practically secured by the committee on transportation under chairmanship of W. A. Russell, General Passenger Agent of the L. & N. Railroad Company, and the hotels are being prepared to entertain without advance in rates. Letters of investigation are being mailed daily to leading citizens of Kentucky and it is expected that there will be at least six hundred people on the floor of the convention.

Forest conditions in the Appalachian Range, and in Kentucky in particular, will be discussed by W. L. Hall, Assistant to the Chief of the United States Forestry Service. Mr. Hall has had charge of the recent investigation into the Hardwood situation and he is well prepared to teach Kentuckians needed lessons in the conversations of their forests.

Agriculture will be discussed by W. M. Hayes, Assistant to Secretary of Agriculture, Wilson. Other topics of interest will be as well covered and it is anticipated that much good will accrue to the State through the medium of the Convention.

Trouble Brewing.

"Day riders" waited on J. Whit Clark, at Morgansfield, and Henry Ruby, buyer for the Imperial Tobacco Co., at Uniontown, and asked them to quit buying. A delegation also waited upon Jno. H. Hodge, at Henderson. Following the visit, in a signed statement appearing as an advertisement in both of the Henderson dailies, the American Tobacco Company, the Imperial Tobacco Company, Dibrell, Glover Co., Calaher Limited, John H. Hodge Tobacco Co., Thomas Hodge, Noseworthy & Argue and Arthur B. Jarvis, all state that they will buy tobacco in Henderson as usual this winter.

MANY STATES HOLD ELGETIONS

There is only one ticket—the Democratic—in Mississippi, and the result, of course, is not doubtful.

Ten Tickets in Massachusetts

In Massachusetts there are ten tickets, five being divided among Democrats, who are engaged in a factional fight with the State delegation to the National Democratic Convention next year in perspective. The Ballot Law Commission decided that Henry M. Whitney was the nominee for Governor.

In Nebraska the Democrats and Prohibitionists fused on the officials to be voted for throughout the State.

In Maryland there will be a straight contest between the Democrats and the Republicans, only the two parties having made nominations for State officers. In addition to these a House of Delegates and one-half of the State Senate are to be elected. The next Legislature will choose two United States Senators—one to fill the unexpired term of the late Arthur T. Gorman, and the other to take the place of Senator Rayner.

The Republicans adhere to the plan of senatorial election, but the Democrats are to put into effect a new senatorial primary plan, which requires every member of the Legislature to vote for the candidate receiving the largest vote in his district. The senatorial primaries, so far, at least, as the Democrats are concerned, will hereafter be a part of the regular elections in Maryland. Three aspirants for the long term will be voted for November 5, the candidate for the short term having no opposition.

The local elections, particularly in New York county, Cleveland, Louisville, Cincinnati, Salt Lake and San Francisco are of particular interest this year.

Catarh Fifteen Years.

Mrs. S. A. Rogers, LeMoore, Cal., writes: "I had chronic catarh of fifteen years standing, and death seemed to stare me in the face. I tried several 'so-called' catarh remedies, and without avail. I took fifteen bottles of Peruna and five bottles of Manalin, and I am completely cured. All the catarh symptoms are gone, my digestion is good, my appetite is good, and I rest well at night. I am seventy years of age and I hope to live many more years to praise Peruna to all my friends who suffer from catarh as I did."

Rheumatism of Old Age.

Mrs. Caroline Trunk, 1705 Jefferson Ave., Peoria, Ill., writes: "I had a very painful trouble for six years, consisting of rheumatism in the back and in the thigh. I used a great deal of medicine, but it did not help me. Then I used Dr. Hartman's Peruna, and two bottles of this entirely freed me of the rheumatism. I wish to keep both Peruna and Manalin always in the house. This is the best medicine that I can recommend any one to take for rheumatism."

Catarh All Through My System.

Mr. Robert Metters, Merdock, Cass Co., Neb., Box 46, writes: "I commenced to take Peruna the first of last February. I took it as nearly as possible according to directions. I also got a Peruna almanac and for the first time learned that my trouble was systemic catarh. I had catarh from my head all through my system. I took Peruna until I was entirely cured."

Cough and Indigestion.

Thomas Beckwith, 11 Kitchell St., Auburn, N. Y., writes: "I was troubled with a cough and indigestion. Thanks to your advice and Peruna I am in good health now. I was talking with an old friend last week. He told me he took Peruna last winter, and he is in the best of health, working every day and speaks highly of your medicine. I shall feel it my duty to recommend Peruna to all my friends."

A great many testimonials from people of high rank and people in the ordinary walks of life, are received every month. Catarh in all its phases, catarh of the different organs of the body; acute catarh, chronic catarh, catarh that has baffled other remedies—all these are giving to Peruna unqualified and unsolicited endorsement.

DIRE DISTRESS

It Is Near at Hand to Hundreds of Hopkinsville Readers.

Don't neglect an aching back. Backache is the kidney's cry for help. Neglect hurrying to their aid. Means that urinary troubles follow quickly.

Dire distress, Diabetes, Bright's disease, as a M. G. Long, farmer, one of the best known residents of the county, who lives on the large farm which he owns, on the Franklin road, one and a half miles east of Russellville, Ky., says: "I had marked symptoms of kidney ailments, particularly in connection with the kidney secretions which at times were most irregular and distressing. Once in a while I would feel a heavy, dull aching across the small of my back, always more severe after any over-exertion. My attention was attracted to Doan's Kidney Pills by advertisements in the papers and the statements made by the people who had tried them led me to believe that they could be depended upon. I procured a box and before I had used the contents there was a vast improvement in my condition, enough to prove to my satisfaction that Doan's Kidney Pills are fine for kidney and bladder troubles."

Caught in a deliberate falsehood in his efforts to convince the people of Kentucky that his employees are not the trusts having interests in the state of Kentucky, especially the Tobacco Trust, A. E. Willson, Republican gubernatorial candidate, has further confessed and confused himself by a second explanation that does not explain anything. How the Republican party standard bearer is leaping from one falsehood to another is best told by the Hon. J. Morgan Chinn, clerk of the Kentucky court of Appeals, and the man who first discovered Mr. Willson's trust connections. Read the following from Mr. Chinn:

"The further Augustus E. Willson goes in his efforts to explain to the people of the state, his connection as attorney for the Tobacco Trust, exposed in a speech which I made in Franklin county a week or more ago, the more certainly does he convict himself of every charge which I made against him. The first specific interest which I gave of his association with this pernicious trust was his employment here in Louisville for the American Tobacco Company. He acknowledged that employment, explaining it, as a personal matter between himself and Mr. Gibson, attorney for the company, and declared it was the only instance in which he had any connection whatever with the trust. I then showed from the court of appeals records at Frankfort that that statement was wholly untrue; that Mr. Willson had been counsel for the Continental Tobacco Company in a case at Louisville, in which he sought, for that company, to evade payment of tax claims of the city of Louisville aggregating one hundred thousand dollars. Again admitting the truth of my statement, the Republican gubernatorial candidate acknowledged that he had been 'mistaken' when he said at Bowling Green that he had represented the tobacco trust in but a single case and then as a matter of courtesy to a fellow lawyer. As a second explanation his trust connection, Mr. Willson now comes forward and states he was 'accidentally' employed in this Continental case also; that he was again employed by Mr. Gibson because he had just fought out in the Louisville courts a case of the Mengel Box Company, of Louisville, involving practically the same question, and Mr. Gibson knew him to be familiar with these tax matters. Such an obliging lawyer as Mr. Willson has proved himself out of his own mouth to be, especially where a brother lawyer of trust inclinations seeks his services, that I thought it advisable to look into the Mengel Box Company case for the purpose of ascertaining if in that case also Mr. Willson was obliging some one and did not take that case originally from one of the parties to it. I find that it, like the Continental Tobacco Company, is a New Jersey corporation, and according to the evidence of Mr. C. C. Mengel, president of the company, large books of its stock are held by the Continental Tobacco Company and by Mr. Duke, the tobacco king of this country. This statement I quote from the court records, and it can be found at page 48 of the transcript of the records in this Mengel Box Company case, which transcript is on file in the office of the clerk of the court of appeals at Frankfort, and which is a public record of the State of Kentucky.

"Certainly Mr. Willson will not say that he did not know who his employers were when he took the case of the Mengel Box Company. No lawyer takes a case without knowledge as to who are his clients and what are their interests in the case in which he is retained. He must have known at the time he gave out his first response to my charges that he had been employed by the Tobacco Trust in more than one case in the courts of Kentucky. He must have known at the time he declared that his connection with the Continental Tobacco Company was due to his previous employment by the Mengel Box Company that the latter company was largely held and controlled by the Continental Company and by Mr. Duke, the Tobacco King of this country. He must have known that the Mengel Box Company, at the time of his employment, was nothing more or less than part and parcel of the Continental Tobacco Company. Mr. Willson has been forced to admit the truth of every statement that I have made regarding his Tobacco Trust connections. He must now admit that his own witness, Mr. Mengel, of the Mengel Box Company, told the truth when he stated in his deposition in that tax case that the stock of that Kentucky corporation was partly, at least, in the hands of the men who controlled the Continental branch of the Tobacco Trust. From denying that he had employment in more than one case, this Republican party leader has been brought to admit connection with both the cases I have named. Let him now explain his connection with the Mengel Box Company and tell the people before whom he is a candidate if the truth of the whole matter is not that he became a regular employed attorney for the tobacco trust through having first represented one of its infant industries?

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Burton H. Barnes, a wealthy American tourist, lieutenant, Edward Gerard Anstruther, and his Corsican bride, Marina, daughter of the Paella, from the murderous vendetta, understanding that the reward is to be the hand of the girl he loves, End Ed Anstruther, sister of the English lieutenant. The four fly from Alaska to Marseilles on board the French steamer Constantine. The vendetta pursues and as the quartet are about to board the train for London at Marseilles, Marina is handed a mysterious note which causes her to collapse and necessitate a postponement of the journey.

CHAPTER II.—Barnes gets part of the mysterious note and receives letters which inform him that he is marked by the vendetta. He employs an American detective and plans to beat the vendetta at their own game. For the purpose of securing the safety of the women Barnes arranges to have Lady Charliss leave the secluded villa at Nice to which the party is to be taken in a yacht.

CHAPTER III.—Suspicion is created that Marina is in league with the Corsicans. A man, believed to be Coraggio Della, is seen passing the house and Marina is thought to have given him a sign. Barnes refuses to explain to Barnes, which fact adds to his latent suspicions.

CHAPTER IV.—Barnes plans for the safety of the party are learned by the Corsicans. The carriage carrying the party to the local landing is followed by two men, are supposed to be Coraggio, and they try to murder the American. The cook on the yacht—a Frenchman—is suspected.

CHAPTER V.—The yacht is followed by a small boat. The cook is detected giving signals to the boat. Barnes attempts to throw him overboard, but is prevented by Marina and End.

CHAPTER VI.—The cook is found to be innocent of the supposed crime, and is forgiven. The party arrive at Nice and find Lady Charliss and her daughter Maud domiciled in the villa rented with Barnes' money. Barnes is amused to find that Count Coraggio is at Nice and is taking the role of a sinister for Lady Charliss.

CHAPTER VII.—Barnes and End make arrangements for their marriage.

CHAPTER VIII.—The next night, after a long day, Barnes receives a note from La Belle Blackwood, an American adventuress and hears that End's money, his detective, has been murdered by the Corsicans. He learns that the man supposed to be Coraggio, who followed the party on their way to the boat, was Lady Charliss' nephew and the count, and that Count Coraggio had been in Nice for some time prior to the party's arrival. The count warns Barnes not to marry End unless he would have her alive involved in the murderous feud.

CHAPTER IX.—Barnes and End are married. Soon afterward the bride disappears. Barnes discovers she has been kidnapped and takes the train to find her.

CHAPTER X.—The groom secures a fishing vessel and is about to start, in pursuit of his bride's captors when he hears that the count warns him not to marry End unless he would have her alive involved in the murderous feud.

CHAPTER XI.—When Barnes and Marina arrive in Corsica he is given a note written by End informing him that the kidnapping is for the purpose of entrapping Barnes, so the vendetta may kill him.

CHAPTER XII.—Barnes and Marina have unusual adventures in their search for End. They come in sight of land and find End in the Corsican mountains, but as night approaches, in seeking shelter from a storm the couple enter a hermitage and there to their amazement they discover Tomasso, the foster father of Marina, who was supposed to have been killed by De Belle's soldiers, and for whose death Barnes had been vendettaded.

CHAPTER XIII.—Tomasso learns that Marina's husband did not kill her brother. Many wrongs are righted. Barnes is surprised in the hermitage by Rochini and Romano, the two desperadoes who had been searching for him to murder him for his money. The bandits attempt to take away Marina. Barnes dashes out the door. The bandits start to pursue, but as they reach the door both are laid low by Barnes' revolver. Members of the Balloccada enter and Barnes is honored for his great service to the community in killing the hated Rochini and Romano. The release of End is promised.

CHAPTER XIV.—Barnes is conveyed in triumph to Balloccada. Marina acquiesces the Balloccada with Balloccada's plot against her husband and the people are instructed to vote against him at the coming election. Barnes is taken to the mansion of the Paella to meet End. Marina receives a telegram and starts for Bastia to meet her husband.

CHAPTER XV.—Entering the room to greet his wife Barnes is bewildered to find the adventures La Belle Blackwood, but not End. She had been substituted for the American bride by a Corsican plot. Lieut. Anstruther arrives to find Marina and learns that she has been lured away by the telegram which had been sent by another without his knowledge. The two start in search of Marina.

CHAPTER XVI.—Barnes and Edwin take different roads in their search. Edwin is trapped in a tower where he is a prisoner. In endeavoring to escape he opens a trap door where he finds Emory, the detective, who has been imprisoned there previously. In a secret chamber Tomasso is found imprisoned. Edwin is lured down a well upon the portico of a farm house Marina and Count Danella sitting and talking together.

ing: "In God's name, where is my wife?"

"Diavolo, of course, you have come here to find her. At the port of the Bastia road, I thought the 'Lucchesi' captured my mistress and myself and forced us to drive toward the east. Coming over the mountains, their language told me they were not 'Lucchesi,' but Corsicans. I would have told Marina, but when I got out to water the horses at the little fountain up near Pietra, two of them struck me insensible and I awoke and found myself here. But, Signore, I beg you to note one thing. Your true wife and my beloved mistress believes she was rescued from the 'Lucchesi' by Cipriano Danella, and she is grateful to him. Get me to the light that I may allay her fears. The old Corsican has faintly staggered up; a moment later he is pulled from the vault by the strong hands of Anstruther and the detective.

"This is old Tomasso Mendali," says End shortly, "who was supposed to be killed."

"Holy amoke, the fellow who was believed dead and they vendettaded Barnes about!"

But Tomasso's words make them feel they have little time to lose. Be-slides, Emory is always whispering with white lips: "This tower is mined!" Together they go up the stairs, carefully examining every crevice in the building, but find them all loopholes too small to permit the exit of a man, and the masonry too solid to be broken through in any ordinary time, as the building is bare of tools and weapons.

"There is nothing but to get out of the tower chamber," says Edwin. "It is a sailor. With half a chance, a single vine, with even the assistance of our clothes torn into lengths, I can scramble down. Some way I'll do it."

They have reached the upper room. Anstruther has thrown off his coat and vest, kicked off his shoes and taken off his stockings. Toes will sting to the rough stone floor better than boots. He picks up the letter and the concluding sentences seem to make him crazy. He springs to the window and a muttered oath parts his lips. He utters a long wail, half of longing, half of despair.

Upon the portico of the modern portion of the farmhouse, pleasant with vines and flowers, almost reclining in a hammock is Marina. Robed in white, the young wife looks like a dream of love to her despairing husband. Her face is flushed, if not happy, at least excited. To her, speaking—the distance is too great for her to understand the words, but apparently from the gestures they are those of unity—Edwin and Cipriano Della, his eyes sparkling viciously, his costume the romantic one of Corsica.

CHAPTER XVII. Whiffs in the Air.

Some time after midday, Mr. Barnes, in pursuit of Anstruther, reaches Pontella-Lecchia, where the people are now crowding about the polling house. He doesn't stop here and continues rapidly on, notwithstanding the sun is very hot, the dust is very heavy.

As he reaches the high hills toward Morosaglia, he commences to find cyclamen flowers, quite faded now and having but little perfume.

"By Jove," he remarks, "I gave Edwin the right path. He should have turned back and followed him last night, not today."

This makes him hurry all the more, and his horse is still faster. He ascends the hill past the convent and pauses at the little inn near the famous water of Orezza.

The American has heard of their curious powers, and asks for some, as he gorges languidly on the communal of the little village, around which the men are still clustering.

The heat has been tremendous; his speed has been great; his face has been covered with lines of fatigue.

"This glorious Orezza water will make you a new man," chides the landlady pleasantly. Barnes takes a wondrous youth-giving chalybeate a better patient to work upon, for as the effervescent fluid, cold from the springs of the mountain, flows down the American's throat, a new power, a new vigor seem to enter each nerve, each limb.

It is now quite late in the afternoon. Burton soon passes the chestnut lands of La Castagna, still flanked a few faded cyclamen blooms to guide him on his way. But now a little shock thrills him. He checks his horse abruptly, springs off and picks up a bunch of the wild flowers. As he rides along examining it he ejaculates: "This is very extraordinary. This branch, which I supposed Marina dropped out of the carriage yesterday, was certainly cut this very morning."

Suspicion flashes through him as he questions: "Can these flowers have been strewn in the road by Cipriano's agents to lead someone on?" and what had been no warning to the easy-going sailor becomes a danger signal to the man of the world.

Yet, twist it how he will, Barnes can see no reason why Danella should want anyone near him save Marina. If the Corsican's passion for that young lady is what he thinks it is, he will prefer a free hand to deal with her alone. "And yet it is evident somebody wanted somebody to follow this cyclamen trail, and whether somebody wants it or not, I am here anyway," thinks the American grimly. "And thanks to the divine Orezza water, I am rather fit for fighting." Then carefully examining his revolver, the pistol shot remarks: "And that's all, thank God."

With this, resolutely but more circumspectly, Mr. Barnes continues his way over the path marked by the cyclamen branches.

By the time he has come out on the hills looking down toward the Tuscan sea, it is very dark. There is no moon yet, but the light from the lone watch tower attracts him. The cyclamen flowers he occasionally picks up make him know this is the road Anstruther must have traveled.

Suddenly, but quietly, he turns his horse from the path, and in the seclusion of a thicket of wild grapes, listens. Some dozen men are coming from the east; he hears one of them growl: "Why then, 'Lucchesi' nearer than Pietra to light, though the count ordered every man about the farm to go out and protect the vines from thieves."

"Well, there's some good reason for Maestro Cipriano's orders. Perchance the Italian laborers in the Green Orezza quarry have risen up," adds another.

"Perhaps with the lady he wishes not to be disturbed," giggles a third. "The count has musicians in a boat off shore."

The men have no sooner passed than Barnes starts quickly down the road. The "lady," he guesses, means either Marina or his own bride, though of the last he has slight hope. A sudden light from the town guides him in the darkness.

But when he is within less than a hundred yards of the building, he sees the deep chasm that descends sheer to the very sea. Springing from his trembling horse, the American finds that the bridge, which is a light, swinging beam, not over 35 feet in length, has been swung to the other side.

The scent of a fresh cyclamen bloom enters his nostrils. He looks at the removed bridge and remarks acutely: "With a sudden snort of terror, draws up right in the path, crouching on his haunches, and Barnes peering over his steed's head, guesses into the deep chasm that descends sheer to the very sea. Springing from his trembling horse, the American finds that the bridge, which is a light, swinging beam, not over 35 feet in length, has been swung to the other side."

So Barnes gazes across the chasm he cannot pass. The night being very still, he hears over the soft murmur of the waves beneath him the sweet romantic music of Corsica rising from a boat. "This the playing of stringed instruments accompanying a sweet native love song, each stanza ending in that curious prolonged note peculiar to these island ditties."

"What the deuce is that bizarre, crazy devil's game?" wonders the American. Then he hears voices from the low Corsican house. Beyond the crevices he sees Marina in white robe amid the lights and flowers of the veranda. Her sweet tones are scarce audible. Then Danella's voice reaches him faintly in the soft night air.

He begins to understand and mutters: "Good God!"

"After a little cry of love yet despair reads the heavens from the tower. It is Anstruther's. 'Tis mingled with a cry for mercy. 'My husband' in Marina's voice."

Next Barnes hears Cipriano's suave, triumphant laugh, and he mutters: "My God, for a pistol it's a fearfully long shot, but it's the only way!"

Hastily he selects a spot with a good line of sight and stands waiting—waiting for the chance; for intervening vines trouble him, and the foliage of a great orange tree, standing alone in the garden and midway between the house and the turret, jumbles the light, which is only the faint sheen of the rising moon.

Slightly before this, Marina had been sitting on the long veranda of the Corsican farmhouse, the lighted lamp placing some tinges of ruby in her dark brown hair and giving color to the light costume that enhances her loveliness.

Quietly entering from the house, Cipriano Danella, costumed in the old time, romantic Corsican garb, gazed upon the exquisite girl outlined by the light costume.

The eagerness of his glance draws Mrs. Anstruther's eyes to him. She looks up and says: "Ah, Count Cipriano, it was very noble of you, who I had feared would not me, to rescue me from my imprisonment. I am in the vice, I have rested here, but tomorrow, notwithstanding the romantic serenade you have provided for me, I must go on to Bastia."

dawn, and my nephew, Count Enrico. 'I haven't seen him,' remarks the girl uneasily.

"Farewell, you did once, the gentleman with the scar upon his face, the one who delivered the letter that caused your nerves to jump in the Marseilles railroad station. Even now his name seems to have an ill effect upon you," for Marina has started up, and the fluttering of her light skirts shows her limbs are trembling.

"Mia Madre, was he the man?" she shudders. "And was it you who penned it?" Then some divination entering her mind, she implores pathetically: "Holy Virgin, no harm has come to Edwin! I have not kept the trust!" Have I not deserted my dear husband? It was the promise of that awful letter that no evil should come to Edwin if I left his arms."

"Ah, but you neglected to return to them, bella mia," smiles the gentleman.

The young wife scarcely heeds the insinuation of the smile Italian term, but stammers, confused: "Why do you think that?"

"Ma foi, you were journeying to Bastia to meet your husband, lure there by a telegram I directed to be sent to you from that place, whispers the count significantly.

"The telegram was false? Edwin is not in Corsica? Edwin is safe? Madre Dio, I thank thee!" Marina's voice rings with a hope that produces a supreme joy in Cipriano's occult mind.

This lady upon whom he has set his fervid love, is overpowered and regards her own safety, but the great love she bears this Englishman makes her timid for him. This Danella's plan to use for his own destruction this generous and mighty love.

"That's what I wish to discuss with you," he observes quietly, gazing upon a face to which each wave of passion bids such loveliness that he cannot restrain the monstrous proposition on his tongue. It breaks forth. "My poor brother loved you, but you gave him death," he whispers passionately. "I love you, but, per Dio, you will not give me death—but love!"

"Love? Impossible!" Marina starts from him wildly; then scorn coming to her eyes and lips, remarks haughtily: "You are speaking to a wedded wife, Monsieur."

"Not legally wedded, I have hopes. My brother, poor Musso, perchance by his lips in private gave his consent to your nuptials, but that I have no proof. There is no written document. You are still a child—but 20—according to the French law, you cannot without the consent of your guardian for several years. Anstruther, in his careless English way, thought not of it; you were too eager for his weeding to note the omission. By my poor brother's death, his authority as your guardian passes to me."

"Pish! I was wedded in Musso's very presence," answers the girl, proudly; then cries: "I am Edwin Gerard Anstruther's wife, by the church and by my love."

"Is a pity; you compel me to make you my wife."

"Edwin's widow?" At that awful word, Marina shudders and sinks over- come into a chair.

"Listen to me, Cipriano's voice is deep with menace, yet soft with passion. "On the further cliff down the coast are quarries of dazzling-hued green Orezza marble that is taken from my island to do."

"Orezza marble, what has that to do with Edwin's life?" half scoffs the girl.

Women Lack Dignity.

An English periodical writer, that is, a writer for periodicals, says that women do not know how to walk, and get along like mechanical toys. "The deplorable lack of dignity in women," he says, "is one cause of the bad walking." Our dressers were dignified and the oriental of to-day has inherited the trait, but the modern woman has it not.

NEW IDEA IN SALAD.

Always Popular Dish Put Up in Novel Manner.

This salad is arranged on individual plates. Take six small lettuce leaves, and arrange them around the plate; in the center of these leaves put about one tablespoonful of salad dressing; this makes the center of the daisy points, which have been made by cutting into narrow strips the whites of hard-boiled eggs. Take the yolks of the hard-boiled eggs, and by mashing them through a strainer and scattering them over the tablespoonful of salad dressing, it will give it the finishing appearance, and will give the finishing touch to quite a good counterfeiter of a real daisy. The dressing for this salad is made by beating together three eggs, adding to this one cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, half a teaspoonful of salt, the same of white pepper, two teaspoonfuls of mustard, butter the size of an egg, made into a smooth paste by mixing with two teaspoonfuls of water. Boil for about 20 minutes, or until it thickens; when cool arrange on the lettuce leaves.

Post Office "Derelicts."

On an average no less than 30,000 letters are posted annually without any address, some of them containing money which amounts to about $2,000 a year. Among the cryptographic addresses submitted for decipherment to the post office expert were "Oban-vick," which, being interpreted, is "Holborn Viaduct," and "Hilwite," which stands more obviously for "file of Wight." These were easy of decipherment compared with a letter addressed "Hasefisch in no fampshire," which nevertheless was duly forwarded to "Hasefisch, Northamptonshire," and with another thus superscribed, "To the Doctor of Woe, Chesley Oslittle, London, Queen Victoria," which was duly delivered to the secretary of war.—T. Divide the dough in portions, pat into a sheet, place on a floured and buttered baking tin, run a fluted roller over it, if you have one, otherwise mark in parallel rows and bake.
